

The Importance of Mother's - Ron Stullenbarger -

"My son, observe the commandment of your father and do not forsake the teaching of your mother; bind them continually on your heart..." (Proverbs 6:20-21).

If we were asked to name the greatest and most influential people, many would probably think of presidents or leaders of industry, business, banking, or education because their decisions shape the world. But who shaped them? Perhaps one of the most influential people in anyone's life is a mother.

We all know how important mother's are in our lives. Mother's are very important and are needed in a child's life. In life we learn many different things from our mother. Mothers always teach us and their advice is always very beneficial for us.

We should not ignore their advice. Mother is the nurturer, custodian, and protector of their children – and I might add, their families. It is harder these days for mothers to be with their children to the extent they used to be because, generally, two parents require working full-time jobs just to stay alive or survive. Mother's are always a very close and best friend and they are the only person in the world who never deceives their children.

Mother always deserves everything for what she does. If our mother's do everything for us then it's our responsibility to do everything for them. She keeps a very important place in our life. Without mother our life is black and white.

A mother's heart is always very soft and patient. A mother's heart is like a rare jewel. They love their kids during the worst (trouble) and best of times. All mothers are not same, but all mothers love their children and want to see them happy. Mother is a great gift from God. No one can take the place of mother!

We should be friendly with her. We should respect her. We should honor her. We know Mother's Day comes once in the year -- and on this special day we honor mothers.